Commentary

Global equities started the new calendar year with mixed results, as the developed markets of the US, Japan and Europe fell from their recent peaks, in contrast to Asia Pacific ex Japan and emerging markets, which continued their upward momentum.

The fund underperformed the MSCI ACWI Net Return Index in January, after strong performance in the final quarter of 2020.

Methanex provided the biggest drag on performance during the month after the shares almost doubled in the final quarter of 2020.

Pandora's share price followed a similar pattern despite better-than-expected results from the company. The Danish jewellery company made the biggest positive contribution to performance last year after the shares more than doubled, driven by a turnaround in operating performance.

Coca-Cola, Imperial Brands, Colgate-Palmolive and PepsiCo underperformed in a weak consumer staples sector. Amcor, which provides packaging for consumer goods and healthcare products, was also among the detractors.

Standard Life Aberdeen bucked the trend in an out-of-favour financials sector and added the most value. St. James's Place, our other holding in UK financials, also outperformed. The wealth manager reported new business inflows that exceeded expectations and boosted funds under management to record levels.

Keyera added value in a strong energy sector. The midstream company, which owns and operates infrastructure assets in North America, continues to pay dividends and the stock remains attractively valued, in our view, on a dividend yield of around 8%.

Technology stocks were also prominent among the top contributors. Our semiconductor holdings Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company (TSMC), KLA Corp and Tokyo Electron delivered solid gains, while Microsoft benefited from a favourable reporting season.

Dividend announcements

Despite the ongoing uncertainty in the global economy, the new calendar year started on a positive footing, with higher dividends from our holdings in healthcare and financials.

Anthem, the US managed care organization (MCO), was responsible for the biggest increase. The dividend was raised by 19%, the second year in which the dividend has grown at this impressive rate.

Novartis, the Swiss pharmaceutical company, extended its track record of consecutive dividend increases which stretches back to 1996.

Our new holding in Blackrock accelerated its pace of dividend growth to 14% from 10% in the previous year. The investment manager has raised its dividend for 12 years in a row, during which time the dividend has grown at an average annual rate of 15%.

Arthur J Gallagher, the US insurance brokerage, also stepped up its rate of dividend growth with a 7% increase from 5% in the previous year.

There were no dividend cuts.

Key changes

We were more active than usual in January, with three new purchases and three complete sales.

We bought Siemens and Lundin Mining to diversify our exposure to the cyclical 'assets' category after our existing holdings in extreme value, such as Methanex and Trinseo, rallied strongly in the value rotation.

Siemens, the German industrial group, is a company undergoing transformation, which we believe has scope to create value for shareholders by applying greater capital discipline across its businesses. We have invested in Siemens before and we think the current valuation is undemanding. The new holding has already made a positive contribution after results beat expectations by a considerable margin.

Lundin Mining is a base metals company driven primarily by copper, with a competitive cost base and a strong balance sheet, which is essential for a cyclical business, in our view. The company is expecting to announce a 50% dividend increase in February, reflecting the free cashflow outlook of current operations. The company also has a strong commitment to responsible mining, with a record of reporting on sustainability performance since 2011 – a commitment which has been widely recognised by third-party providers of ESG analysis. Blackrock, the global investment manager, was the final purchase during the month. Blackrock is another company which is familiar to us as a powerhouse in a growth industry.

Turning to sales, Tokyo Electron provided a source of cash after strong performance. Shares of the semiconductor equipment manufacturer more than doubled since we first bought the stock for the strategy in July 2018. The M&G (Lux) Global Dividend Fund was launched in September 2018, but the UK-domiciled OEIC version of the dividend growth strategy has been in place since July 2008. Performance also accounted for the sale of Ørsted, the world leader in offshore wind. The holding period was much shorter than usual, but the shares doubled since our initial purchase in April. We also completed the sale of Danone in consumer staples.
